Problem Statement:

College students need an app that provides accurate data on types of meals and the quantity/availability of meals. Our solution will help students avoid wasting time finding the perfect dining hall that best fits their desires.

Who's experiencing this:

College students who are looking to find a meal throughout the day that best fits their schedule.

What is the problem:

College does not provide an accurate list of meals or foods that are available at any specific time in the day

Where does the problem present itself?

Mainly at dining halls and very rarely retail locations on campus.

Why does it matter?

College students are given a very short period before classes start that are mainly to get situated and comfortable with the college life; however they can't possibly check out every building from classes to dining halls. And as classes start they are spending extra time making it to class early and have short breaks between to find somewhere they actually want to eat.
